

ABSTRACT

Compositions in gel form or suppository are provided for treatment of vaginal dryness, wherein the composition comprises certain herbal compounds, with or without a vitamin such as, for example, vitamin A, C, D or E. The compositions may include an anti-bacterial agent and are applied to the affected area in an amount which is effective to provide the required relief when applied over a period of time.